THE HARE AND THE TORTOISE

A Hare was always boasting* about his speed and sneering at a Tortoise because he was so slow. One day the Tortoise said, 'You may laugh at me, but if we ever had a race I know I could beat you.' 'Ridiculous!' said the Hare. 'Is it?' said the Tortoise. 'We shall see. Are you ready?'

They started up at once and, of course, the Hare quickly outran* the Tortoise who merely crawled along. The Hare, in fact, was so far ahead that he treated the whole matter as a joke and lay down. 'I'll take a little nap* here in the grass,' he said to himself, 'and when I wake up I'll finish the race far ahead.'

Nevertheless, the Hare overslept himself and when he arrived at the finish line, the Tortoise, who had plodded steadily along, was there ahead of him.
